Plants Eat Pests

Carnivorous plants are a useful pest control and they gain interest from children who may then become interested in growing plants. They also produce beautiful leaves and flowers. I am growing a range of these plants and can either sell them wholesale or retail either to the local area or elsewhere by mail order. They include sundews (Drosera), Venus Fly Traps and pitcher plants (Nepenthes and Sarracenia). I plan to use any profits to fund projects to benefit communities. It would be appreciated if you could ask some people if they are interested or share an email or print out that I could send you. I am seeking people to sell them for a commission if they prefer that. No long term contracts are required and they can be casually sold in places like markets, store fronts or online.

My plants have an advantage over others that you buy because in the base of the pot I have inserted a unique self watering wick system that means easy care which saves you time. It provides the correct level of water to enable optimum growth. It reduces the risk of the plants drying out and dying. With this system, I am so confident that your plant will thrive and live for a long time, that if it does not, I will give you a free bare rooted plant (probably a sundew) to plant back in your self watering pot. The plants can stand on top of an empty planter pot or rack in a tray of water with the wicks hanging down into the water. Alternatively, I can provide a special stand and tray. If the water level drops below the level of the bottom of the pot, the capillary wicks draw up water to keep the soil moist. Commercial capillary matting is used that should last for years.

Plants are labeled with their name. They also contain a small tag with a number or code to determine the name.

I also provide pots, trays, wicks, capillary matting, potting mix and can even repot your plants.

I also have other websites relating to separate topics including, free groups, new ideas and rare information to help people. They are briefly summarised at TrueSolutions.info. They include plans for groups to research and compile a list of the best products, services and ideas including ones that have been suppressed. There is also: 1. a weather network to provide information. 2. an astronomy group. 3. a plan to form a large data base of honest companies and organisations that can help inventors. 4. a memory test and plans to find what will improve your memory. 5. new ideas to restore democracy and prosperity to the country. 6. a group to search for people whose prayers make a noticeable difference. They could help and pray for us and lead us to the truth. 7. a group to search for and research suppressed inventions that are claimed to be better than well known products. I have also developed many practical inventions with huge advantages over competing systems. I plan to use any profits to fund these plans.

Please let me know of anyone that can help with these plans such as by sharing information. Free leaflets are available.
